Open Source Licenses - Examples

Simple Usage

Open Source

MIT

GPL / AGPL / LGPL

<many others>

Flexible use of source code execution results

- Use Source and/or Software
- Modify
- Keep Acknowledgements & licenses
- No need to publish anything, use only within company / organization

Open Source Licenses - GPL

Open Source Licenses

---

MIT to avoid hurdles

- Especially small projects
- Working with CROs, externals, ...

GPL to get “snowball” – open source effect

- If you change source, use same license
- Avoid commercialization

LGPL vs. GPL vs. AGPL

- Different re-share strictness

Commercial Aspects

---

Why Open Source / Open Standards

- Allow anyone to use
- Promote global standardization (over companies)
- Allows full transparency & acceptance
- ...
- Collaboration standard better than custom standards

Commercial Aspects

---

Business Concepts

- Professional Services
- Merchandise / Adverts
- Software as a Service
- Donations / Crowdsourcing
- Selling Users (e.g. App-Store income)
- Re-Licensing
- Sponsorship

Commercial Aspects

Who should / could pay?

- All user (independent, CROs, Pharma)?
- All members?
- All companies / big companies?
- Software providers?
- Environment providers (Cloud, Databases, ...)?
- Sponsors with adverts?

Commercial Aspects

---

How / for what?

- Trainings, documents, additional material
- Support
- Cloud services
- Integration support (e.g. "App-Store")
- Continuous Development
- Validation

Project Considerations

➤ Three-Aspect Process

Data

Proprietary

- Customer Ownership
- CDISC standards

Open

- Example data

Documentation

Metadata / Concept

Open

- Allow anyone to use
- Adoption & Additions
- Metadata ideally “public domain”
(contributor maintenance otherwise)

Documentation

Software

Open

- Provide Functionality
- Enable additional open source software
- Vendor independent
- APIs
- Plugin support

Documentation

Project Considerations

FAIR

Customization

Lifecycle

Inhibitor

(support additional open source development)

Owner of Software

(can apply different licenses)

Vendor /
Environment
Neutral

Addon / Plugin friendly

Source Code just „small“ part of Software / Process

Summary

- Open Source as inhibitor for open Software
- Licenses for Source Code
- Creative Commons licenses for “others”
- Understanding of core license concepts
  - Public Domain – full freedom
  - MIT – very open (BY)
  - GPL – inhibitor purpose (ShareAlike)

Summary

---

Open Source Projects

- Financing difficult
- Mindshift in industry
  - Open source can harmonize a lot!
  - Needs investment
- Collaboration opportunity
- Can enable many solutions
- Innovative small Proof of Concepts
- Up to large-scale projects

- Questions on licenses?
- How open? What parts?
- Community / Company engagement?
- Learn from others: CDISC, PHUSE & Pinnacle

Open Source Licenses – GPL Q&A

Force publication

- No, only to users

Nondisclosure agreement

- No, contradicts GPL rights (Users can reshare, also to public)

Translation to another programming language?

- Modification -> GPL (no “new” software)

---

Difference licenses?

- Creator / copyright owner can release under GPL and other

GPL for non-software

- Possible, not recommended, use CC (creative commons)
